

Kansas City Zoo Operations Building

The 9,200 square foot Operations Building at the Kansas City Zoo was designed to provide offices and locker rooms for permanent and part-time zoo staff including animal curators, supervisors, and other support employees. All security for the new zoo is centrally controlled from the Security Supervisor's office in this building. Other spaces within the building include a sign-in area, an assembly and break room, a cash control room, an animal records area, and a conference room.
